

I am opposed to relaxing the current media ownership regulations. The proposed changes will not foster diversity in view points presented in the media to the general public. Diverse view points and in depth coverage of subjects is the best means to fully understand the matter at hand. Understanding is what our general public needs to continue being a vibrant, strong and decisive society. The world is becoming a more complex environment everyday. If the United States expects to be a world leader in the future, we need to have a well educated\informed public that can make sound decisions. The media is the largest influencing force on our society. I believe that compromising the diversity and quality of the media content through consolidated media ownership will jeopardize the future strength of the United States.
